17 April 2018

Dear Soborno,

Thank you for your letter of 17 March, kindly inviting me to write a few words of introduction for your book The Love, and also for your offer to solve a math/computer science problem with you to celebrate your sixth birthday, which was on 9 April.

Could I first send you my belated best wishes for your sixth birthday which I hope you were able to celebrate with family and friends.

I would also like to congratulate you on your obvious and remarkable academic achievements, which have come to the attention of such luminaries as President Obama and Dr. Lisa Coico, amongst others. You sound like a remarkable and talented young man.

I would like to wish you well with your book The Love, the concept of which are close to the hearts of all free-thinking, democratic people around the world. Owing to the enormous number of similar requests that I receive, I have decided to confine my contributions to United Kingdom parliamentary publications, or to those which relate to my constituency of Buckingham,

I also fear that I would be unable to match your obvious excellence in solving a math/computer science problem with you.

I send you my very best wishes of the future.

Yours sincerely
John Bercow
